		<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. The video software and technical team reported that all previously shared video, presentation, and visual materials had been reviewed but could only contribute a maximum of 10% benefit to the video. 2. They reported that materials submitted for the video should be recorded horizontally and in full HD, and that attention should be paid to this in future shares and projects. 3. It was mentioned that all materials sent by the Ukrainian team are suitable and that, even though other shared videos are vertical and of low quality, they can be used to create various animations through filters. 4. It was confirmed that the total 30-minute video would be narrated in Turkish, English, Bulgarian, Ukrainian, and Romanian, and that all videos would have English subtitles. 5. It was agreed that the total 30-minute video would not be suitable for viewing; instead, it would be more appropriate to divide it into several separate videos, each filling 30 minutes and focusing on the anthropological benefits of seagrass, what seagrass is, and how to protect it. 6. All video titles will be processed separately in the synopsis document and enriched with information that will be useful to the video team by adding some details below them. This synopsis document will be prepared by Mr. Şevki and Mr. Alp and delivered to the video editing team within 2 days at the latest. 7. It has been decided that the delivery date for the educational videos, including voice-overs, editing, subtitles, and all content, will be October 25, 2025. 8. Any questions, requests, or needs regarding the videos may be submitted to the video team. AI-supported videos and animations will be prepared by the video team. Additionally, any materials obtained during this period (such as visuals or videos sourced from other royalty-free websites, publicly available stock footage, etc.) will be shared with the video team.
